

LOVE STORY OF MEDIAEVAL DAYS

Amusing Romance of Stradella and Leonore Will Be Presented Tonight at Arizona School of Music by Talented Singers

"Stradella," a comic, romantic opera will be put on this evening at the Arizona School of Music under the direction of Prof. C. R. Nuetzel, a talented gentleman who has ably staged a number of operas in the east before his advent in Arizona, and anything he directs is certain to be well managed. Much of the scenery used in "Stradella" has been painted especially for the opera and will add greatly to the effective setting of the piece. Leon Tolleson will appear as Stradella and Leonore will be impersonated by Miss Anna Marie Luke. The varied fortunes of these two persons furnish the plot of the story which runs in this wise: Stradella, the celebrated church-singer of the seventeenth century, is secretly betrothed to Leonore, who lives with her guardian, Bassi, a rich old patrician of Venice. Bassi, having fallen in love with Leonore, insists on marrying her himself, and in spite of her opposition, has fixed the day for their marriage. In the evening preceding this day, during the Carnival in Venice, Stradella comes with some of his pupils to serenade Leonore, and succeeds in carrying her away. Bassi discovers the flight of his ward and his endeavor to force her back, is met with sport and fun on part of masqueraders. In the second act Stradella and Leonore are preparing for the marriage. Bassi, having been frustrated in his designs, determines on revenge and hires two bravos, Turbino and Malvolio, to kill Stradella. The duet between the two bravos is one of the famous numbers of the opera. In the second scene the wedding celebration takes place, and here is introduced the well-known trio. Special dancing numbers add to the interest of this scene. In the third act during the celebration of the festival of the Holy Virgin at the Shrine of the Madonna, an attempt is made by Bassi to have Stradella killed, but the bravos are so charmed by his singing that they refuse and confess their guilt. All ends amid a general jubilation and the happy pair receive the blessing of Bassi.

GEORGE HANCE WON HIS CASE IN COURT

Well Known Camp Verde Pioneer Beat Out the Forest Service in Legal Proceeding

George W. Hance, of Camp Verde, than whom there is no better known pioneer in the state of Arizona, has returned home after spending a couple of days in Phoenix. During his stay here Mr. Hance was quartered at the Adams, and being a true blue republican he was, as a matter of course, one of Mr. Adams' guests at the Taft banquet the other night. It was because of a tilt with the forest service that Mr. Hance was in Phoenix. There was some sort of dispute over the right to graze cattle in a certain locality and the case finally got into the federal court. But by the time the sturdy pioneer had told his story that was all there was to it, he won hands down. It was as pleasant bit of news to carry back to his neighbors.

And right here let it be said that George Hance lived in Arizona in the days when neighbors were few and far between. He came to the Camp Verde country in 1869, which is as long as some of us can remember—almost. He settled on a homestead up there and he lives on that homestead yet. And here is something of which he ought to be proud if he isn't—he helped organize the republican party in Arizona.

Mr. Hance is a familiar figure at all republican state conventions. He is always ready and willing to do his best for the party to which he bears such unswerving loyalty, and he will be at the Tucson convention the third of next month. And he will be there to give the Taft cause a helping hand.

There are many people in Phoenix who know Mr. Hance. More than that, they are proud to know him. He is one of the men who helped carve a state out of the wilderness. And of all that number there was no one who did his work better than did the staunch pioneer of Camp Verde.

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

W. B. Dickey Found Guilty; Attorneys Ask for New Trial on Ground That Conviction Was Secured Through Perjury

It was nearly supper time when the case of the United States against W. B. Dickey was given to the jury last evening and it was 8:30 in the evening before the jury returned a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation to the mercy of the court. Judge Mack sitting in "extra session" to receive the returns.

Dickey is charged in the indictment under which he was tried with defrauding the government by entering upon public lands by means of dummy entries, the defendant coming into possession of the claims by relinquishment.

Baker and Baker represented Dickey and the case was a most interesting one involving the presence and testimony of many of the prominent citizens of Wilcox near which place the fraudulent entry is alleged to have been made.

A sensational episode occurred when Judge Baker in summing up to the jury attacked the veracity of the chief witness for the defense, W. A. Ingraham whose name appeared as a signer to the relinquishments. Ingraham swore when upon the stand that the signature was not his and denied that he signed the documents.

This feature Judge Baker attacked and endeavored to prove that the writing was in reality that of the witness and offered in evidence a hotel register containing Ingraham's name.

After the verdict had been rendered Judge Baker asked for a new trial on the grounds that the conviction had been secured through perjured testimony. The court said that if he was convinced such was the case he would act decisively in the matter. Further signatures were introduced and the court reserved decision on the question until 9:30 this morning.

Dickey is a real estate dealer in Wilcox, and during the course of the trial produced a number of character witnesses, and an effort was also made to show that Ingraham was actuated by malice. Ingraham was at one time in partnership with Dickey.

MARRIES ONE OF OWN RACE

Teresa Morales, Whose Marriage to a Chinaman Was Stopped by the Authorities Seeks Her Old Sweetheart; Judge Does Rest

Another chapter was written yesterday in the case of Teresa Morales the sixteen year old girl who was prevented from marrying a Chinaman a few weeks ago when a marriage license was issued in favor of the girl and Rafael Lomili. A little later the pair were married by Superior Judge Phillips.

The girl has been in the custody of the juvenile court officers since the stopping of the affair with the Chinaman, but yesterday Teresa ran away.

Instead of returning to her home she sought out her former sweetheart Rafael and in a short time they had arranged the matter. The consent of the officers was necessary and soon obtained, and after a little persuading that of the mother was also procured, and the ceremony took place in one of the rooms in the building now being used by the superior court.

Republican readers will recall that a few weeks ago a license was issued for the girl and a Chinaman named Ling. Juvenile court and probation officers took the case before the court, and after a hearing the girl was remanded to the care of the juvenile court it appearing that she was not an altogether willing bride.

It appears that young Lomili is a former suitor but stepped back into the shadow when Ling appeared on the scene. Now however he has claimed his bride and all concerned seemed satisfied.

The groom is a young tailor who gives his age as twenty-one years, and says that he has a home already for his wife. Teresa was married in a white dress which came just below her knees and accompanied her childish appearance. She was accompanied by her sister.

The authorities are well satisfied with the solution to an annoying problem and showered congratulations upon the newly-weds.

NEW APOSTOLIC DELEGATE HERE

Archbishop Bonzano, the new Catholic apostolic delegate to the United States, has arrived in this country and within a week will take up his residence in Washington. Churches have a way of using proper names that indicate political relation, perhaps authority. There is a bishop of Chicago, and he so styles himself, but he has no political relation to Chicago as a city, nor authority over any persons who do not voluntarily award him such power.

In the same sense Archbishop Bonzano is apostolic delegate to the Catholic church in the United States.

The church in question has nine such apostolic delegates. The other eight are Canada, Constantinople, Arabia, Early Buyers Get Choicest Locations In Chandler Townsite Business and Residence Property!

LOT SALES BEGIN MAY 16th

(In the Heart of the Famous Chandler Ranch)

Hundreds of live investment opportunities are awaiting large and small capital at Chandler, Arizona—the new town in the heart of nearly 100,000 acres of rich orange and alfalfa land—surrounded by the world's richest mining districts. This beautiful well-planned town is not a boom proposition—it is a logical trading point, made so by an agricultural district that will soon produce several millions of dollars' worth of products annually.

Chandler Townsite is in the heart of the great Chandler Ranch, where nearly three-quarters of a million dollars' worth of land have been eagerly purchased by California ranchers and fruit growers during the past few months. This is the rich territory watered by the great eight-million-dollar Roosevelt Irrigation System—the wonderful co-operative profit-sharing government water project you have been reading about during the past year.

There is a logical, consistent plan back of Chandler. It is being started right, under the supervision of the best architects and engineers in the West. The Mesa Improvement Company, owners and developers, are spending a fortune on the development of this town. Study the architect's plan pictured below. Note the beautiful plaza. Note the areaded effect of all buildings in the business district.

Mesa or Chandler, Arizona

The opening of Chandler townsite will not be accompanied by a flourish of trumpets or a special celebration of any kind. Boom features will be noticeably absent. The growth of Chandler will not be forced—this town backed by ever-increasing sources of agricultural wealth, will grow NATURALLY and CONSERVATIVELY.

Greece, India, Armenia, Persia and Syria. In still smaller countries there are two delegations of even lower grade. These are the vicars and the prefectures. French Guiana in South America being one of the numerous delegations of the last named rank. In all cases these are administrative officers, without political character, save in rare instances. The Catholic political nunciatures, with the breaking of Spain, are now few and with the exception of Vienna, unimportant.

The delegation at Washington was founded in 1892, when Mgr. Satolli, afterwards Archbishop and Cardinal and now dead, was sent to Washington by Pope Leo XIII. The work is administrative and ecclesiastical. It is the former in relation to such matters, just now being adjusted, of money collections at church doors and masses at earlier hours than others, with different charges, thus making class distinctions. This practice, never large in this country, the pope has recently discontinued and forbidden. And the delegate is ecclesiastical in that on many great occasions he represents the pope and the combined power of the Catholic church in America, as no other prelate, not even one of the three Cardinals can do.

PUSHCART PHILOSOPHY.

The theory of pushcart selling is that anything whatever can be sold if it is only brought to people's attention; that among the myriads passing along any thoroughfare there are people with all sorts of latent wants which can be awakened into a buying impulse if what they want can be brought to sight. It is this belief that prompts the vender to offer stocks that to many persons might seem ill-adapted to street selling.

He may appear one day with his cart drawn up beside the curb loaded with gas burners and shades. Who wants to buy these things here? But some man passing that way intent on business may be reminded by the sight of that pushcart load that one of his gas burners at home is plagued up and doesn't give a good flame; and he may also think that he would like to try one of those glass shades.

Or the pushcart man may have a load of files, of all sorts and shapes, and sizes. Many a man has been reminded by the sight of such a load that he is doing a little job of tinkering at home and that his files are all dull.

Sometimes the pushcart vender stock a cart with a combination of things. Thus here was a man who was selling books and pipes, two-thirds of the space devoted to pocket-books of all sorts and the rest to pipes. What prompted offering these two things together it would be hard to say.—New York Sun.

SPRING WATER.

In point of potability, the best water is, undoubtedly, spring water, in which all possibility of contamination is out of the question. Where the course of the water has not been too long, and it has not, consequently, taken up a large amount of mineral matter, such springs furnish one of the very best sources of drinking water. The advantage of spring water over surface water for drinking purposes is considered by some sanitarians so great as to justify the incurring of a very considerable expense in order to procure it. Thus, the city of Vienna has constructed extensive water works for the sake of bringing water from springs which are sixty miles distant.

MUCH LEFT TO CLEAR UP.

There remains a great deal to be cleared up about the Titanic—for one thing, the holding back of news and the substitution on the first day of false news for true. Wireless did a wonderful work of succor, but did it with subsequent peculiarities of department that it will be interesting to have explained. There is a good deal else that will make interesting reading if it all comes out, and it will be a satisfaction to have the senate committee pursue to a conclusion the inquiry with which at this writing it is busy. On current Atlantic liners there is carried on at the same time the businesses of navigation and hotel-keeping. It does not do to mix them up. Navigation on the Titanic seemed to have dropped into second place; but as to that the investigators will report.—Harper's Weekly.
